PROJECT:

Investigation of damage on tube material due to presence of Nano particles in base fluid.

- This project consists of a method of adding nano particles into the base fluid to achieve the higher heat transfer rate and reducing equipment size in heat transfer devices.
- Since the abrasive action of the particles causes more or less marked erosion of the circuit components and pipelines.
- Hence before adopting nano fluid as a cooling medium it is very essential to study the damage effect caused by nano particle presence on system components.
- Therefore, this study attempts to investigate the damage effect of nano particle on three different materials for the same concentration of 5% Al₂O₃ with time
